

MOKENA WPA PROJECT GIVEN OK

100 per cent WPA
Grant Will Finish
Water Main Extension

Mayor Harry F. Mall has received notice from the WPA headquarters that a 100 per cent WPA project for the extension of the village water mains for a distance of 1,060 feet along Wolf road, has been approved and that work on the project will be started about December first according to the schedule.

The extension of the mains will not only give the residents of the northwest side of the village water service, but also good fire protection.

DO THE DEAD RETURN?

Famous Lecturer Exposes Trickery and Fraud of Spiritism, Fortune Telling

Mokena folks will have the unusual opportunity of hearing M. C. Elz of Chicago in a novel, educational and entertaining expose of spiritism, fortune telling & kindred occult arts. While this lecture deals with a serious matter, it is nevertheless made highly interesting, yes often even entertaining and amusing. No one could possibly hear this lecture without being fully convinced of the folly of seeking consolation from such sources.

The program of this lecture is divided into two parts. The first part is the lecture in which the lecturer speaks on: 1. Isolated cases of spiritism thruout the ages. 2. The history of spiritism in this country. 3. The religion of spiritism. 4. The answer to the question: "Do the dead return?"

In the second portion of the program the lecturer demonstrates: 1. Proof of the fact that one can easily be deceived. 2. Analysis of various mysterious deceptions used in magic. 3. Reproduction of a fortune teller's office. 4. Examination of mind-reading. 5. The floating table.

In usual cases an admission charge is made for this lecture. However, a friend has made it possible to bring this famous lecture to Mokena on a free-will offering basis. The lecturer will present his program and will leave it up to the people to pay him what they think it is worth. In other words, no regular admission charge will be made but at the end of the program the hat will be passed for a free-will contribution. Could anything be more fair? If you have no money, come and hear anyway. You will be welcome. If you have money and think that the program was worth a contribution, throw it into the hat. It will be appreciated.

This lecture will be presented in the school gym on the evening of Friday December 3. Watch this paper for further announcements.

FORMER MOKENA
BANK OFFICIAL
DIES IN FLORIDA

George H. Cooper, Sr., aged 82 years, well known former farmer of Orland township, died in St. Petersburg, Florida November 10th at 5 p. m., following a heart attack.

About two weeks ago he suffered a heart attack. He improved and it was thought he was fully recovered, but he had a relapse and died suddenly.

Mr. Cooper spent his younger days in Orland township as a farmer. He was identified with the Illinois State Fair at Springfield for many years and was widely known in state agricultural circles.

When the Mokena State was organized in 1909 Mr. Cooper took part in the organization of the bank and served as vice-president of the institution until he moved to Florida.

About twenty-five years ago he moved to Libertyville, Illinois and from there to St. Petersburg, Florida where he lived for the past 14 years.

He held various town offices in Orland township.

Surviving are two sons, Herbert of Mokena; George, Jr., of St. Petersburg, Florida; one daughter, Mrs. Maud Ingels, St. Petersburg; 8 grand children; 2 great grand children; three brothers, Edgar Cooper, Orland Park; Edwin Cooper, LaGrange, and Will Cooper, Goodland, Indiana; two sisters, Mrs. Ben Sayers of Orland twp., and Mrs. Stephen Sayers, St. Petersburg, Florida.

Funeral services and burial will be in St. Petersburg, Florida Saturday, November 13.

Mr. Cooper formerly resided on the present Walter Cooper farm on Wolf Road north of Mokena.

Mrs. Cooper died a number of years ago.

Wm. Ross of Homer Dies

William Ross, 66 years old and a life long resident of Homer passed away at his home Saturday morning after a brief illness.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife Elizabeth nee White, 1 daughter Mrs. Christel Koehler, 2 sisters Mrs. John Marti of Plainfield and Mrs. Albert Marti of Homer and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held from the home Monday at 1 p.m. to the Homer church at 1:30. Rev. H. R. Jay officiated and Mrs. Robert Burch and Mrs. Clarence Rowley of Plainfield sang The Old Rugged Cross and Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. Interment at Brooks cemetery.

Frank Kolar, Maurice Paddock, Eugene Doum, Fred Paddock, Wm. Bokoski and Joshua Boyce acted as pallbearers.

Pheasant Hunters
Trespass On Game Refuge

Elmer Nelson, Mokena farmer reports that he had given the Mokena Sportsmen's League a permit to place pheasants on his farm as a bird sanctuary and that the past week hunters came on his farm and shot every pheasant on the place. Mr. Nelson is very indignant over the affair and is now determined to allow no hunting on his farm under penalty of the trespass law.

E. G. Tonn
Former Mokena
Man Dies In Tex.

Ernest G. Tonn, aged 48 years, a former Mokena man, died in Fort Sam Houston, Texas last Saturday evening. He had been ill with a heart ailment since last July. He was removed from Fort Sill, Oklahoma to the hospital at Fort Sam Houston, where he died.

Mr. Tonn was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Tonn and spent his early manhood in Mokena.

He was principal of the Taft public school in Lockport for a number of years.

During the world war he was in the army and was stationed in an eastern army camp.

He was commissioned a corporal. About twenty years ago he went to Texas and the last time he visited in Mokena with his parents and brother Leon was in 1929.

He is survived by his brother Leon of Mokena and one sister, Mrs. E. D. Gillett of Marley.

Burial was made in the National Cemetery in Texas.

Tinley Hdw. Store
Sponsoring Program

For sometime plans have been underway to present an electric festival under the auspices of the Bettenhausen Hardware Store at the Tinley public school auditorium and this interesting program will be held Friday evening, Nov. 19 at 8:15 p. m. The program will be not only of special interest but will also be educational.

There will be motion pictures and the subjects to be shown will be "The New Frontiers" and "The House Next Door." Both pictures will show the progress made in modern appliances. Westinghouse products will be featured.

A special treat for the evening will be a short demonstration of uses for small household appliances by a Westinghouse Home Economist. There will also be two comedies. In conclusion there will be the awarding of many door prizes. Mr. Bettenhausen with the Westinghouse Company extend their cordial invitation to the public to attend. The entire program will be free.

7 Seconds Too
Brief Warning For Streamliner

The Tinley Park Civic Club has had complaints from a number of people that they have had narrow escapes from being hit by the Rock Island streamliner trains at the Tinley crossing, due to the fact that there is not enough time from the time the crossing flashers start operating, before the train is at the crossing. The trains travel at such high speed that within seven seconds from the time the train enters the flasher block the crossing is reached. This very short time does not give enough warning of the approaching streamliners.

The Civic Club will take the matter up with the Rock Island officials to have the flasher block set farther back so as to give a few more seconds warning time.

DANGEROUS S.W.
& WOLF RD. COR.
GIVEN PROTECTION

Following the recent fatal collision of an automobile and truck at the intersection of the Southwest highway and Wolf road near the Chas. Liess filling station, in which three men were killed, Elmer L. Cooper, Mokena Republican precinct committeeman and garage man took the matter of providing better protection at this dangerous intersection up with Senator R. J. Barr of Will County and Senator Barr has been instrumental in getting the desired results.

Senator Barr has been advised by Kendrick Harger, District Engineer that the state highway forces have been ordered to remove the stop sign on Wolf Road for the north bound traffic and to place it on the Southwest highway for northeast bound traffic.

This in the estimation of the engineer, will eliminate the confusion now existent to south and northeast bound traffic entering the intersection. On approaching the intersection from the west a reflex "Stop Sign Ahead" will be installed and a reflex curve sign. On the pavement a stop line and the word "STOP" in large letter will be painted.

Both Senator Barr and Mr. Cooper are to be commended for their successful efforts to safe guard the lives and property of the motoring public.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL TO TINLEY TAILOR

Harry Philips, aged 69 years, member of the firm of Philips Bros., Clothiers and Tailors, located in the Goessel Building in Tinley Park, died very suddenly last Thursday morning following a sudden heart attack suffered in his home in Tinley Park.

Mr. Philips had not complained of not being well and was quite active. He was up until one o'clock Thursday morning talking with his brother and sister about plans for the next day.

Mrs. Philips died about a year ago, and Mr. Philips was planning to make arrangements for the purchase and erection of a monument on her grave in Waldheim cemetery in Chicago.

He arose about eight o'clock in the morning and was seized with a sudden severe heart attack and died a short time later.

He came to Tinley Park from Chicago about two years ago. He is survived by a son and daughter living in Chicago and three sisters and one brother.

Funeral services were held last Friday in Chicago with burial in Waldheim cemetery.

Rebellion Against
God Threatens
Dark Ages

We may be hurled into 20th century "Dark Ages" if the sullen rebellion against God and His word continues, Dr. Walter A. Maier predicted in his coast to coast Lutheran Hour Broadcast last Sunday.

Despite cultural and educational progress, Dr. Maier said, the nations and their peoples are still groping for light, even university presidents conceding the failure of much of modern education to build character and influence the human spirit for permanent good. Science, he asserted, has added to the comfort of the body but not to the peace of the soul. Statesmen have let the mania for war go unchecked in some sectors, and the world is poised on the perilous edge of international warfare. As the consequence of this uncertainty our age, more than any other, has seen a parade of false prophets, an increase of bizarre cults and the most startling upsurge in the curve of neurotic diseases and suicide.

"It is only in Christ, 'The Light of the World,'" Dr. Maier added, "that we can find complete and un-failing guidance for these perplexities of the human soul which, if unsolved, leave men in unrelieved restlessness and misery. It is only in the radiance of Christ's gospel that we can discover light for the darkness of human destiny and explain the otherwise unfathomable mystery of sorrows."

The Lutheran Hour, heard locally over Station WCFL every Sunday at 3:30 p. m., is represented in Mokena by the Rev. W. J. Geffert, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran church.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

"I'm—I'm modeling—for the last time."

"Can't you get out of it?"

"No."

"That's decisive. I have a present for you, but this doesn't seem to be just the moment to produce it. You seem to dislike me more than ever. I thought we might play round together. If you can't, or won't, I'll join a bunch of friends who wanted to date me up for some sort of fete this afternoon. They were all excited about a plan to surprise somebody about something. I didn't listen; I was anxious to locate you. I'll see you tonight before I leave, Brooke."

The sky was like a huge sapphire; the sunshine was rose-tinted; the ocean a tumbling mass of emeralds. A fragrant breeze, a mere suggestion of a breeze, ruffled the bright orange flame-vine on top of the high Spanish wall which enclosed three sides of a garden open to the sea, a garden filled with tables set in gay borders which were filmy frocks; there were faces above the tables, faces under large hats and men's faces with no hats at all.

From a Moorish gallery drifted male voices singing to the accompaniment of guitars as Brooke stepped from the automobile which had brought her to the charity fete. Carstons Inc. had staged the wedding party of the style show with meticulous attention to detail, even to sleek shining cars to bring the bride and bridesmaids to the ornate grilles which were the garden gates. Reporters were there and camera men, hordes of them, all the frills and appurtenances of a wedding except groom and ushers.

Madame Celeste, chic in black and pearls, was flushed with excitement under her make-up; her French accent was noticeable for its absence as she whispered last instructions:

"Wait until the singers stop, girls. The moment the orchestra strikes the first note of the wedding march, start. Don't get flustered. Don't get out of step. You're all lovely."

A violin sighed a soft note. Others joined until strings and harps and woodwinds swelled into the wedding march from Lohengrin.

Bridesmaids, their lips scarlet, their eyes shining between dark mascaraed lashes, passed between the iron grilles and moved slowly up the ribbon-outlined aisle, dragging their gold slippers a little in time to the rhythm of the music, and the swish of their taffeta slips. The first two were dressed in billowy rose-orange net; behind them at a short distance came two more in a lighter tint, then two in soft yellow, then a fourth pair in ivory, and then the bride in snowy satin so soft in texture that it trailed in ravishing folds. Slowly she came with head slightly bent, eyes presumably on the mass of white Transvaal daisies and stelia she carried.

Brooke felt the surge of motion as everyone stood up—a tribute to Madame Celeste's stagecraft—the wedding procession was so perfect that habit had brought the audience to its feet. She must keep her attention on the girls in front—why had Mark Trent come to Palm Beach—this heavenly music made one all tremble inside—would she never reach the spot where she was to turn—three stairs to mount before she reached it.

Something pulled at her eyes like a magnet. She looked up. A group of men was standing near the steps. All wore white suits with blue shirts and identical ties of Java print; each one had a boutonniere of deep blue bachelor buttons in the lapel of his coat; all were smiling broadly, she could feel their repressed excitement. Mark Trent was with them. His face went colorless with surprise as his eyes met hers in the instant before she bent her head again. Why was he here? Was this the fete a bunch of friends had urged him to attend?

The stairs. One! Two! Three! She was up. The bridesmaids had deployed to face the audience—she had almost thought "congregation"—the orange-color frocks were at the ends of the semi-circle, the tints paled till they came to the snow-white bride. Her veil had been thrown back. Time for her to turn. The music swelled into a paean of triumph. It looked miles to the iron grilles beyond which stood Madame Celeste. She was safely down the steps! She must smile.

"Ready!"

She heard the whispered word, saw the men in white who had been standing beside the stairs hurdle the guarding ribbon. One offered his arm to her. Urged huskily:

"Quick! Let's put it through."

She looked up. Mark Trent! All the bitterness and pain went out of her heart. It was as if a great wall she had built between them had crumbled to a heap which she could cross. In a flare of gorgeous happiness she slipped her hand under his arm.

"It would be you," she said, and smiled in the second before they were in step with the music. Behind her she heard peals of laughter, girls' voices, men's voices. Then applause. A woman called:

"How priceless! The men are coming out with the bridesmaids!" Brooke stopped at the intricate iron grille. She withdrew her hand from Trent's arm, walked back a step or two, tossed her bouquet among the bridesmaids, waited to see it scatter in four parts, turned, and ran out through the gateway to the limousine.

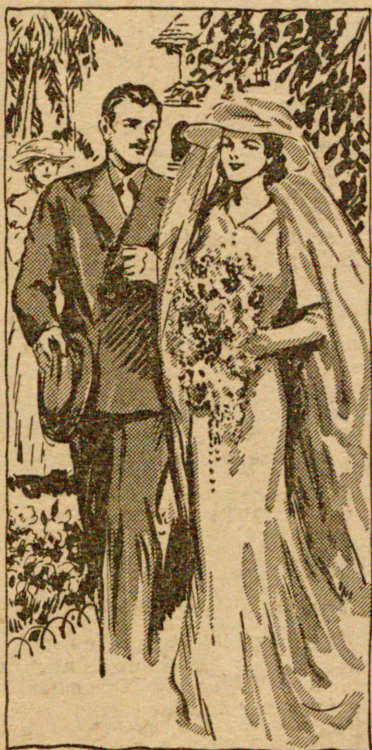

Reporters and camera men flocked after her. Machines clicked. Mark Trent fairly lifted her into the car. He blocked the door from curious eyes as he bent forward and kissed her on the lips. It was a tender kiss. There was reverence in it, there was a promise in his eyes, but laughter in his voice.

"That's an important part of the ceremony, isn't it? Hold out your left hand, Brooke." He pressed a ring on her finger. "This is what I had for you."

He turned away as Madame Celeste hurried up.

"Back to the salon!" She gave the order to the chauffeur with the air of a queen on location. She pushed aside billows of tulle, and sank into the seat beside Brooke who hid her left hand in the satin folds.

As she drove home from Carstons Inc. dressed in the tweeds in which she was to travel, Brooke kept looking at the ring on the third finger of her left hand.

"It Would Be You," She Said.

The soft flush of a tropical evening was stealing forward when she entered the patio, the glamour of night was settling over the dark mystery of the sea. The afterglow turned the masts of the distant yacht to red gold. Birds twittered sleepily. The fronds of the royal palm stirred gently. A man who was pacing back and forth came toward her quickly. Brooke's pulses which had been none too steady broke into a quickstep.

"I thought you would be flying through the air by this time, Mark," she tried to say indifferently.

"Did you think I would leave my bride?"

She avoided his disturbing eyes.

"Bride! The wedding party turned into a riot, didn't it? It was fun. Great theater."

"Just a minute, dearest. Stop and get your breath while I explain my part of it. I told you that I met some men I knew this morning. They were all excited over a plan to surprise a wedding party at a fashion show with groom and ushers; they were a lot of boys all set for a lark; made me feel young just to listen to their fooling. When I found you wouldn't play round with me I joined them. I didn't know till the last minute that they'd picked me for the groom—not a tactful selection, and I refused the honor. But when I saw you coming up that aisle—well, they would have had to battle over my dead body to take my place. Forgive me, will you?" His caressing voice sent a ripple along Brooke's veins.

"There's nothing to forgive. I thought it was fun."

"Then we'll let that ride for the present. We've got to hustle. I have a message for you from your mother."

"From Mother! Where did you get it? How?"

"You dear! I phoned her ten days ago."

"Phoned! Not to England?"

"To England. It's being done some, you know."

"Of course I know. Don't, don't be so wooden."

"Wooden!" His laugh sent Brooke's hands behind her to clasp each other. "First I was a silent policeman, now I'm wooden. That also we will take up later. I didn't know what you had written your mother about the new will. I thought she should understand that your income was the same as when she left; otherwise she might not dare spend money to rush home for the premiere of Sam's play this week."

"It is not the same as when she went away."

"Your mistake. It is. She arrives in New York tomorrow."

"Tomorrow! I don't care what it costs. I'll fly."

"I thought you'd feel that way. I have reservations for us for the night plane." He glanced at his watch. "Throw some things into a suitcase, air-weight, remember. I have a car outside. We have just time to make the flying field."

Was she real, was anything real, Brooke asked herself, as the automobile burned up miles and the broad road flowed away from it. It was alive enough now; the Palm Beach world was hastening to eat, drink, and be merry. Above, through the warm black velvet dome, dripped a million or two stars. A magic night. Shining automobiles, gracefully long and low; others, silent, powerful, fast, provided glimpses of gay wraps, films of chiffon, glints of lame, smooth heads, waved coiffures, sparkling jewels, the sombre black of evening clothes. Chairs propelled by boys with faces dark as chunks of obsidian held gayly appareled occupants. She glanced at Mark Trent beside her. Was he real? As if he had divined her question, he touched the ring on her left hand.

"Like it? Is it big enough, gorgeous enough?"

"It's perfect."

"Then you'll wear it always, won't you? You know that I love you, have loved you from the moment I caught you up from in front of that roadster, that I want you to marry me, don't you? You didn't think for a minute that I would leave you behind here, did you?" His hand tightened on hers.

He caught her close. His eager, ardent lips on hers stopped her unsteady voice.

The car drew up with a jerk. The driver pulled open the door.

"We made it, boss—" He stopped. Put his full-moon face into reverse. Reminded over his shoulder:

"You've got three minutes. Boy waiting for your bags. If you've decided not to go—"

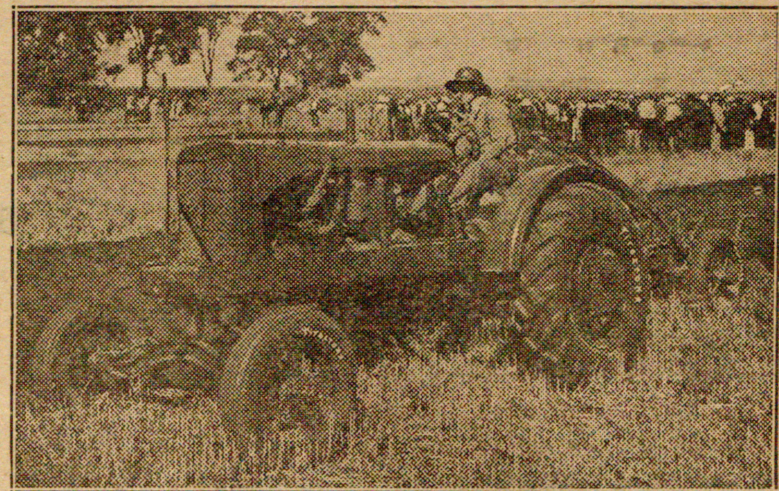

Mark Trent jumped out. Turned to Brooke.

"Coming?"

Wins Tractor Plowing Contest

THE increasing use of pneumatic tires for farm tractors and implements is reflected in this year's plowing contests at Big Rock, Lily Lake, Troy and Wheatland, Illinois. 101 contestants out of 108 used pneumatic tires on their tractors. Individual honors in the championship class went to Paul Stiefbold, who was first in two of the contests, second in another, and sixth in the fourth contest, using an Allis-Chalmers tractor. He scored a total of 356½ out of a possible 400 points. He also had the highest number of points for any one contest, scoring 92½ points. He was closely followed by Carl Shoger with one first and two seconds, using an F-20 International-Harvester tractor. Both men used Firestone Ground Grip Tires on their machines. In the boys' and men's classes Clarence Shoger, son of Carl Shoger, won first place at all four meets with his McCormick-Deering tractor equipped with Ground Grip Tires.

1. What are the ten most beautiful words selected by Wilfred J. Funk?

2. Is the President of the United States vested with the authority to call out the National Guard?

3. In what direction must one travel around the world to gain a day?

4. What is the legend of the Kilkeny cats?

5. What is the population of China?

6. In politics which is considered more radical, the "left" or the "right"?

7. According to the method used in the United States, and also according to the English system, how many millions are there in a billion?

8. Are mass marriages in Germany new?

9. Why is grapefruit so called?

10. Have the Greek and Latin names for the four seasons given us any English words.

Answers

1. They are: Dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring, tranquil, mist, luminous, chimes, golden and melody.

2. No. The only one who has authority is the governor of a state.

3. If you traveled westward around the world you would gain a day, yet if you made the same trip eastward you would lose a day.

4. They fought until nothing was left but the ends of their tails.

5. A minimum Winter protection program should cover:

1. Complete change to correct grade of lubricants for motor, transmission and differential.

2. Motor tuned up, including adjusting of carburetor, valves, distributor, sparkplugs, generator and all electrical equipment.

3. Drain and flush cooling system. Refill with suitable anti-freeze solution.

Selection of motor oil and greases for Winter driving is particularly important. You must select an oil which will permit easy starting, that will lubricate the motor throughout the entire driving range of speeds and will continue to do so for a reasonable mileage.

For many years Quaker State Winter Oils and Greases have been recognized as the highest quality and most generally satisfactory Winter lubricants on the market.

Through Quaker State's highly developed methods and equipment it is possible to produce a motor oil which will have a satisfying body over the 400-degree range of temperature it will meet. That is, when the motor temperature is way below zero, the oil will still be fluid enough to allow the motor to turn easily and also to flow freely to all the bearings. Yet this same oil has enough body to stand up and to give the motor proper lubrication when the temperature inside the cylinder wall reaches 400° and over.

As with any other product you buy, you get what you pay for. An oil of Quaker State quality is necessarily expensive to make. This does not mean, however, that Quaker State is more expensive to use. Being pure, concentrated lubrication, it stands up longer in service. It gives more miles per quart and at the same time gives the bearing surfaces safer protection.

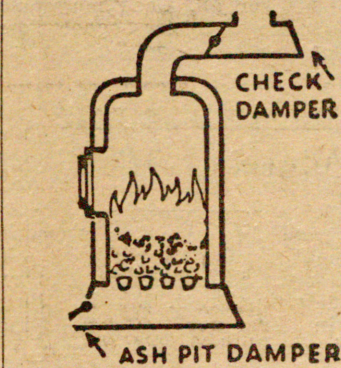

You will want to step into the car, even when the mercury is hiding in the bulb and press the starter with every expectation that the motor will start off with its usual Summer zest. This sure starting, plus motor protection, is only possible by preparedness.—Adv.

Let Ashpit Damper Regulate
Daily Speed At Which You Want Fire To Burn.

IMPROPER adjustment of the turn (or smoke pipe) damper in your furnace results in "chimney" loss of heat. Leave this damper closed as nearly as possible without retarding free burning of fuel or causing gas to escape into the basement.

Once you have found the ideal adjustment for it, be sure you leave it in that position throughout the heating season. Do not attempt to use it from day to day to regulate your fire. It was never meant for that purpose. The only time you need move the Turn Damper is at the start of the very cold season and again at the start of the very mild season. These two times are necessary to meet the extreme changes in outdoor temperature.

Use only the Ashpit Damper and Check Damper for regulating the fire daily—to speed up or slow down the rate at which you want the fire to burn. Rely wholly on these two dampers, and you'll get the proper fire regulation. I repeat—do not change the position of the Turn Damper inside the smoke pipe. Otherwise you'll waste a lot of very valuable fuel and heat.

Trustworthiness

PEOPLE would try harder for trustworthiness if they knew how lovable a quality it is. When you know you can rely upon any one, that whatever they undertake to do will be done, that you can really pass over a share of your load to them, you cannot help liking them.

On the other hand, it does not matter how amiable men may be, if they are forgetful, if they are unpunctual, if they habitually neglect, they become sources of such annoyance that one's liking is apt to die out.—Sir William Robertson.

30 MINUTES AFTER Eating-Drinking ALKALIZE

AFTER A HEAVY MEAL..

..AFTER A LONG EVENING

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkaliizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready. Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

Backbone Needed

Everyone clamors for his "rights" and finds it needs a great deal of backbone to defend them.

The How and Why of the National Unemployment CensusA nation-wide census of all unemployed and partially unemployed persons in the United States will be taken between the dates of November 16 to 20, by act of Congress, and at the direction of President Roosevelt.Here, in question-and-answer form, is the information you need to know about this plan.*

- 1. WHAT IS PURPOSE OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS?
To get an accurate count of the unemployed and partly unemployed.
- 2. TO WHOM WILL CARDS BE SENT?
To every family in the United States.
- 3. UNDER WHOSE AUSPICES IS THE CENSUS BEING TAKEN?
Congress has decreed, and the President has directed, that it be taken.
- 4. IS THE CENSUS COMPULSORY?
No. But every unemployed or partly unemployed person is urgently requested to cooperate.
- 5. HOW WILL THE CENSUS BE CONDUCTED?
Through the facilities of the Post Office Department. Report Cards will be delivered to every family. Cards are to be returned by mail to Washington for tabulation and analysis.
- 6. WHEN WILL THE CENSUS BE TAKEN?
Cards will be delivered on November 16 and must be returned by MID-NIGHT NOVEMBER 20. They are already addressed and no postage is required.
- 7. WHO SHOULD FILL AND RETURN CARDS?
Every person who is unemployed or partly unemployed who is able to work and wants work.
- 8. WHAT AGE LIMITS APPLY?
There are no age limits except existing State regulations concerning workers' ages.
- 9. SHOULD MORE THAN ONE UNEMPLOYED PERSON IN A FAMILY RETURN A CARD?
Yes. Every unemployed member of a family should fill out and return a card, if able to work and seeking work.
- 10. WHERE MAY ADDITIONAL CARDS BE OBTAINED?
At any post office or from your postman.
- 11. WHERE CAN INFORMATION BE SECURED IN FILLING OUT CARDS?
At your post office or from your postman.
- 12. IS THIS CENSUS CONFINED TO AMERICAN CITIZENS?
No. All permanent residents of the United States are included.
- 13. IS THE INFORMATION GIVEN ON THE CARDS TO BE CONSIDERED CONFIDENTIAL?
Yes. This information will be used for unemployment statistics only.
- 14. SHOULD EVERY QUESTION OF THE CENSUS CARD BE ANSWERED?
Yes. To obtain the most accurate information possible, the President asks that each question be answered. Numbers 9 and 10 are particularly important. However, failure to answer some of the questions will not invalidate the card.
- 15. WHO IS AN "UNEMPLOYED" PERSON?
A person of either sex or any color who is not working and is able to work and seeking work.
- 16. WHO IS A "PARTLY UNEMPLOYED" PERSON?
A person of either sex or any color with part-time employment who is able to do more work and is looking for more work.
- 17. ARE PERSONS ON EMERGENCY WORK PROJECTS INCLUDED?
Yes. They should register as unemployed. A specific question, Number 2c, is provided on the Report Card for all persons working on a W.P.A., N.Y.A., C.C.C., or other emergency work project which is supported by public funds.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES*The White House
Washington*TO EVERY WORKER:

If you are unemployed or partly unemployed and are able to work and are seeking work, please fill out this report card right away and mail it before midnight, Saturday, November 20, 1937. No postage stamp is needed.

The Congress directed me to take this census. It is important to the unemployed and to everyone in this land that the census be complete, honest, and accurate. If you give me the facts, I shall try to use them for the benefit of all who need and want work and do not now have it.

TINLEY PARK

Tinley Park Garden Club

Tinley Park Garden Club News For The Garden and Flower Lovers As Well As Our Own Members.The Lily of the valley is adapted to a shady situation, but should be kept in good growing condition.A mulch of well decayed manure at this time is beneficial.
It is an excellent plan to rake up all leaves at the end of the season and use them for mulching around shrubs.All bulbs should be planted by the middle of the month. Chart for planting bulbs:

Crocus	 2	inches deep in. apart
Snowdrops	 2
Scilla	 3
Jonquil	 4
Tupils	 5
Hyacinth	 6
Narcissus	 7	to 12.
Lily	 7	12 or more

The failure with tulips is often caused by too shallow planting. On light land there should be 5 inches of soil above the tops of the bulbs and on heavy ground a depth of 3 to 4 inches will do.Hardy evergreens should have a thorough soaking with water before the ground freezes. If the roots are wet when the ground freezes these plants which must have water at all times will winter in much better condition.Don't forget to make use of the garden club question box.Garden Club members will please have their flower picture scrap-book ready for the next meeting.

Sincerely

Your Garden Helper.

Gospel Message at 3:00 p. m.

This message will be delivered by Rev. S. E. Waldemer of the Immanuel Baptist church of Chicago Heights.We shall all stand before the judgment seat of God. For it is written, "As I live, saith the Lord, to me every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess to God.
So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God."Let us not therefore judge one another any more; but judge ye this rather, that no man put a stumbling block in his brother's way or an occasion of falling. I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean of itself, save that to him who accounteth anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean. For if because of meat thy brother is grieved, thou walkest no longer in love. Destroy not with thy meat him for whom Christ died. Let not then your good be evil spoken of for the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteous-subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 7.The Golden Text was, "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing" (John 6:63).Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon are the following from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good" (Genesis 1:26, 27, 31).The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook,
"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:
"Whatever indicates the fall of man or the opposite of God or God's absence, is the Adam-dream, which is neither Mind nor man, for it is not begotten of the Father" (p. 282).

MOKENA

Edwin Lauffer underwent an operation for appendicitis in Silver Cross hospital Sunday.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Willard Martie in Silver Cross hospital Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Deadmore entertained the Mokena 500 Club in their home in Joliet Saturday evening.

The condition of Mrs. Matt Newton remains about the same.

Mrs. Joe Heyden and sister Mrs. J. A. Raffauf of Frankfort gave a surprise party last Sunday evening in the former's home in honor of their brother Robert and his 21st birthday. The guests were twelve of Robert's school friends. Pinocle was played at three tables with prizes awarded to Harold Cappel and Spencer Houser. Luncheon was served from a table which was decorated in pink and white. The guests, all young men, presented Robert with a lovely leather shaving kit.

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

Ronnie Steen and Leigh Krapp brought a game for the story hour in the primary room Friday afternoon. It was a little show in which different scenes were shown. "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Little Black Sambo" were the pictures. Everyone enjoyed them very much. The primary grades are working hard on the program which they will present at the regular Assembly, Friday November 19.

The intermediate room has a very attractive border across the front of the room made entirely by the 6th grade. It represents the scene of the Mayflower leaving the harbor of Plymouth. The 6th grade has enjoyed maps of the British Isles. These were made of a mixture of flour, salt and water. Some were painted with water colors which really made them very pretty.

The intermediate room has as its room aim, "Better Writing". Each pupil is striving to improve in penmanship.

The Junior high school girls will start basketball practice this week. The Junior high room very pleasantly surprised Mrs. Cappel Saturday October 30 with a Halloween party. Games were played and a delicious lunch was served. Some very comical costumes were in evidence and everyone went home having had a very delightful time. Our young people show a great amount of initiative when given responsibility.

Last week the Freshmen geography class had as its project, the study of mountains. Members of the class gained extra credit through drawing pictures, writing themes and making models of mountains. Some very good work was done.

The botany class has been studying weeds and the following theme was written by Einar Monson:

THE VALUE OF WEEDS

Possibly one may not wonder whether weeds are valuable or not. Nearly all people think that weeds are harmful and never think of the good which weeds can do. In a few cases they are of great value to the people of the West where they have great dust storms and blizzards.

Let me tell you a story a friend of mine told me. It was a year or two ago when we had our great dust storms. Dust was blown all around; for years the people were bothered with this, and they had a great problem on their hands. Then they wrote to the Department of Agriculture, in Springfield. About a week later they got a letter telling how they could stop the sand from blowing around. Two weeks passed and truck-loads of weeds were brought into the community. Then they were planted in a row across the fields. The farmers didn't think that these weeds, which they had worked so hard to kill would be of any value. But they learned later that they became an important factor in settling the dust storms in the Middle West.

The dust storms had passed and then came the spring with all the melting snow and the washing away of the land. They then had another problem on their hands. This was to keep the soil from washing away from their fields.

So again a letter was sent to the Department of Agriculture to find out how this could be stopped. In a very short time a letter came telling how to stop this erosion and giving complete instructions how to go about it. The weeds again played another important part in the lives of those who lived there and in the saving of the fields from being all washouts.

Another problem was to have more moisture kept in the soils. In the fall, the farmers noticed that on the windward side of their weeds, (as they called them), there was more moisture.

One farmer thought he would try something new so he put a row of weeds all around his field. The next spring all his neighbors noticed that when they had a light snow-storm, the snow stopped by his weeds while it blew right across their fields without stopping. This year he had better crops because he had more moisture in the soil.

That fall all the farmers had weeds planted around their fields, and the next spring and summer they all had good crops. So we see weeds have quite a bit of importance in: 1. Holding the soil from erosion. 2. Holding the snow for more moisture. 3. And stopping sand from blowing around.

Now we all know there is not all bad sides to weeds and in the semi-arid and middle west these weeds are really a great help.

The grade and high school basketball teams fought hard to win the games from Orland Friday night. The grade school won by a score of 14 to 9. Gordon Benson was the star with 30 points of 15 field goals.

The next game is to-night with the two Crete teams. These teams are very hard to beat, so let's see many Mokena fans at the games, Friday November 12. Remember your cheers encourage the team to win.

Friday November 12 will be an extra holiday for the students but not for the teachers, who will be visiting other schools to see other methods of teaching.

BUSTER AND HIS GANG FROM FOREST GROVE INN

Why Hybrid Corn Is Not Ordinarily Sold In The Ear

Farmers in their early use of hybrid seed corn often ask and want to know why they can not purchase the hybrid seed corn they expect to use in the ear so that, of course, they may have the opportunity of passing on the selection of the ears that produced the corn they intend to plant. All seed corn has to be shelled before it can be planted and to be planted uniformly with reference to hill count it must be graded. With the cost of hybrid seed corn production considered, no one would expect to discard any of the seed or throw it away, hence, if a farmer bought it in the ear to get uniform hill-dropping he would upon grading either require a number of planter plates, which would have to be changed, or would get uneven planting, or be unable to use all the sizes of seed the different ears would produce.

Hybrid seed in order to be produced economically must be produced in quantity and in handling a practical quantity of hybrid seed conveniently and economically it has to be shelled. Hybrid in order to have high viability (and we would require this at its cost) must be handled differently with reference to drying and storing from the ordinary home picked and dried open pollinated seed. When harvested moisture must be eliminated quickly if the viability of the seed is not to be affected by storage and temperature changes. The viability of open pollinated seed would be much increased with the same type of drying, which is most economical done in warm air treated kilns and then stored as is hybrid.

Hybrid seed, in order to maintain high viability, is dried on harvesting down to 11 per cent moisture. When seed moisture is discharged to this extent immediately following the harvesting and through the kiln method the seed seemingly does not take up moisture again from the atmosphere to any extent and thus the embryo tissues do not suffer from temperature changes as they would with a higher percentage of moisture, and as they do in ordinary dried and stored open pollinated corn. With quick kiln drying it seems that the kernel tissues quickly contract so that the moisture absorbing porosity no longer exists in the kernel.

Where a porous condition follows with slow drying then freer moisture changes take place through moisture absorption and discharge. We have with this condition and low temperatures not only the cell rupture that follows freezing and thawing (particularly under very low temperatures) but an invasion of bacterial and fungi spores. These on germination often hinder the infant plant growth if not entirely destroy it.

One of the common fungi attacks of germinating corn in the soil is called "scutellum rot" and this is a name applied to a series of the fungi bread moulds the spores of which are found in the soil or may be accumulated on the seed in storage. This often happens to open pollinated corn that is stored in a dusty place as in a barn with animals or in a house where the spores of these bread moulds are often abundant. Where seed corn is reduced to low moisture content immediately following harvesting, it can be stored in a clean place with practically no danger of injury in unheated indoor storage. The facilities usually attendant upon the production of hybrid seed corn afford clean, dry storage but which is most conveniently and economically provided when the corn is shelled. It is also then best protected from injury by rats and mice.

There are conditions, however, applying to open pollinated corn where ear inspection and selection would be helpful and which do not apply to hybrid seed and this is where the principal difference comes in and what the farmer does not appreciate when he first asks why he can not select and buy his hybrid seed in the ear. This difference is that all the kernels coming from properly produced hybrid seed ears from the same two single crosses or, in other words, from the same

A Startling Difference

While it has long been known that tuberculosis is more prevalent among the poorer classes, a recent study of employed men in ten states revealed that the tuberculosis death rate in the lowest economic group is six and one-half times higher than that in the highest economic group.

The Tuberculosis Tragedy

Two-thirds of all deaths from tuberculosis occur before the age of 45. Nine-tenths of all deaths from heart disease occur after 45; nine-tenths from cancer after 45; nine-tenths from nephritis after 45. Tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death between 15 and 45. Christmas Seals are fighting to prevent this tuberculosis tragedy among our younger generation.

four grandparents inbreds will carry the same germ plasm and have practically identical progeny possibilities. This does not have reference to the amount of plant food for the infant seedling which varies with the size of the kernel but does refer to the inheritance that the hybrid seed carries forward. With open pollinated corn each ear has a different heritage, particularly on the pollinator or male parent side, and which we have shown in previous articles comes from stalks we have never seen or at least not taken into consideration. With open pollinated when we see the ear we know something about the maternal parentage and hence there is a much different reason for ear selection when buying it.

These reasons do not exist with reference to hybrid. Therefore, we can with hybrid with its cost considered dispense with buying it in ear form for the greater advantage of getting the exact amount of seed we are going to use in the definite sizes or grades that fit our planter plates or which we can get planter plates. With the newer grading of hybrid that will prevail with some producers this year, as for instance, with Thomson's Top-Yield Pfister Hybrid that was grown along the Lincoln Highway in Frankfort Township, we can select sizes that best suit our corn planting program and have plates accordingly. For instance, we usually plant our silo corn last and many of us drill instead of check our silage corn. Consequently in order to accelerate the growth of this silage and make it catch up to the earlier planting we can use large round sizes which carry more infant plant food and accelerate infant growth so that these later planted seedlings will overtake to quite a degree the earlier planted corn.

If we take up in time with the planter manufacturers the particular plates that we should have for any one of the different grades of this 366 Thomson Hybrid, we can have such on hand and thus take advantage of the possibilities of a more economic and profitable corn program.

CUSTOM MADE CLIMATE FOR YOUR HOME

● ENJOY the healthful, balmy, invigorating climate of Palm Beach, right in your own home, this winter. Let the Sunbeam Air Conditioning System create this ideal climate in your own home—to your order!

Avoid colds, flu, grippe, diseases of the respiratory system—save on doctor and medicine bills—without the expense of a journey and sojourn at one of Nature's favored winter resorts.

An ideal climate consists of the right temperature of the air—neither too warm nor too cold; the right amount of humidity; a clean, pure atmosphere, air pleasant to breathe; and circulating, moving, stimulating air.

The illustration below shows how the modern Sunbeam Air Conditioning System provides custom made climate indoors, regardless of the weather outdoors.

Available for any fuel, coal, oil or gas; and for any home large or small, old or new, the Sunbeam costs little more than a good heating system. Let us send you descriptive literature and provide a cost estimate. Act now!

SUNBEAM
AIR CONDITIONING UNIT

Circulating Ducts

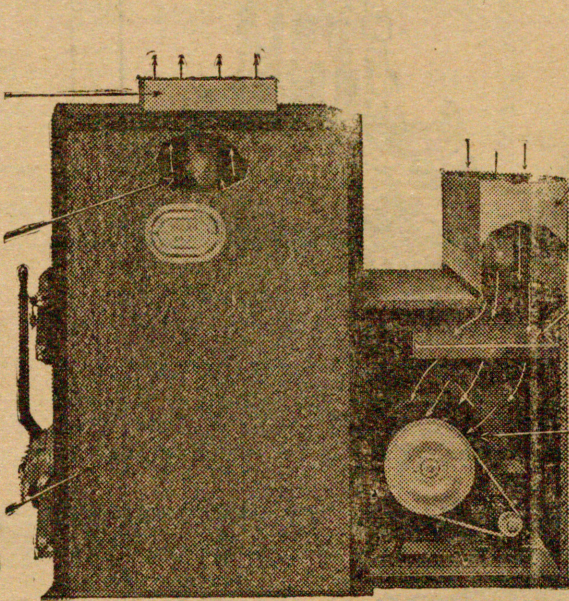

These ducts, which are connected to registers, carry the conditioned air into the home.

Automatic Humidifier

The Air is humidified automatically by this device. Moist air at 68° feels more comfortable, and warmer than dry air at 75°.

Heating Compartment

Here is where the air is properly warmed, by the heavy, gas-tight long-lived heating element.

The Sunbeam Air Conditioning Unit, showing the humidifier electrically driven, blower and filters.

Recirculating Air Duct

This duct is connected to Return Air Grilles located in the various rooms of the home and recirculates the air into the Unit to be conditioned.

Air Filters

Clean, purified air is one of the advantages of air conditioning. Every few minutes all air passes through these filters which remove at least 90 per cent of the dirt, dust, germs, bacteria and pollen.

Silent Blower

This powerful blower forces the conditioned air to every room, under pressure, regardless of wind and weather conditions; provides cooling ventilation in hot weather.

CHOPS HAY - PODDER FILLS SILO - GRINDS GRAIN

SAVE and SACK the BEANS

WHILE chopping and storing the hay, the new Letz mill with grain separator sacks the beans. Saving high priced beans soon pays for a Letz—the surest money maker for any livestock farm.

Says Letz user, Lee Chatham, Danville, Indiana, "We chopped and blew into the mow 72 acres of soybean hay. We sacked 1,000 bushels of Manchu beans, keeping some for seed, reconditioning and selling the rest for $1.25 per bushel. These beans brought us in over $1000.00."

Come in and investigate this wonderful machine. For most farmers feeding beef or dairy cattle, lambs or hogs, the Letz mill saves its cost and more the first season used. Let us demonstrate one for you.

Loans On Corn Are Available To Farm Plan Cooperators

Will County farmers who are eligible for 1937-1938 federal corn loans of 50 cents a bushel may file their applications at the office of the Will County Agricultural Conservation Committee, according to information received by Farm Adviser Leonard W. Braham thru the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Loans will be available after December 1, it is thought, and until April 1, 1938. Bearing 4 per cent interest, the loans will become due 10 months following the date on which they are made with no maturity later than November 1, 1938.

Only farm owners or tenants who will receive payments for cooperating in the 1937 agricultural conservation program are eligible to borrow under the corn loan program. To be eligible as security for a corn loan, corn must have been produced on a farm operated in cooperation with the 1937 agricultural conservation program.

Generally, the corn loan program will operate along the lines followed in previous programs. However, for the first time the corn loan program will be administered by the service facilities made available by the county agricultural conservation committees of the AAA.

Two and one-half cubic feet of corn testing 14½ percent or less in moisture will be regarded by the committee, as a bushel of corn eligible as security for a loan of 50 cents a bushel. For each 1 percent increase in the moisture content of the corn in excess of 14½ percent, there will be a deduction of 2 percent in the bushels of corn as determined by the cubic content in excess of 20½ percent.

Special emphasis has been placed toward the proper construction and ventilation of cribs in which collateral corn will be stored. Official sealers operating under supervision of state warehouse super-measurements of corn cribs holding collateral corn, inspect each for construction, ventilation and other information as required on warehouse certificate forms and seal the cribs.

Samples will consist of shelled corn taken from representative lots of 50 to 100 ears from each crib containing up to 1000 bushels and a proportionately greater number of ears will be taken for samples from cribs containing more than 1000 bushels.

Corn Collateral must be insured against loss by fire, lightning, cyclone, tornado and windstorm, for not less than the amount of the loan and for as long as the loan remains unpaid. Loans may be obtained through banks or other lending agencies or directly through notes made payable to the Commodity Credit Corporation and delivered to any designated loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The corn loan program will be conducted in Will county by the agricultural conservation committee supervised by the state committee. The county committee will check the eligibility of producers applying for loans prepare loan agreements and certifications recommending the loans and perform other duties in connection with making the loans.

In states such as Illinois where corn loans are available to farmers in each county and where a surplus of corn exists, the corn loan enables the producer to market his corn in an orderly manner, Adviser Braham said as he pointed out advantages of the corn loan.

A producer is not forced to resort to selling his corn at a time when the market is heavily supplied. Under the corn loan program, producers may obtain credit on the corn they have raised and still carry their own supply on their farms where most of it will be used.

Further the corn loan program presents an opportunity for farmers to stabilize livestock numbers on their farms by permitting them to build up a reserve supply of feed grain of which many have been scantily supplied within recent years.

ORLAND PARK

Sunday afternoon the Orland Park Fire Department was called out when a fire swept thru some wooded land and dry grass in the southeast part of the village. The blaze was put out before much damage resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman S. Knox attended a family re-union at the Oliver Forslund home in Des Plaines Sunday.

The Orland Park Post of the American Legion held their monthly meeting Tuesday night last. There was a good attendance of the membership.

The Orland Park RNA will meet in regular session on November 23. The Orland Park village board will hold their next semi-monthly meeting on November 29.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

"Night Skies", a series of radio talks about astronomy will be given every other Saturday night at 10:00 p. m. over WGN thruout the winter by Dr. O. J. Lee of Northwestern University.

Dr. Lee's new program is similar to his previous series "Night Skies and Beyond". In it he discusses problems of astronomy, how to identify the stars and the relation of the world to the heavenly bodies.

A star chart is given free to all who request it by mail. The first broadcast will be November 13.

This series will be fine preparation for our work in astronomy next semester, so all students are advised to tune in on this interesting and instructive broadcast.

STAGE IS SET FOR THREE ACT COMEDY

The Orland Park High School will present "Sound Your Horn" by Howard Reed, and obtained thru the Dramatic Publishing Co. on Nov. 16 at 8:15 o'clock.

Whether you have hitch-hiked or learned the highway from behind the wheel of the latest sport model sixteen, you will delight in this play of Christine's wayside refreshment stand. It is full of catchy comedy. Sometimes it's Homer Bird, blundering after cute Etta, that gets the laughs. Sometimes it's Phyllis and Drusilla, drinking their way thru the list of soda pop, that touch the funny bone. The play offers contrasting roles in those of Mr. Angus and Beasley; the one suave and successful, the other blundering and inefficient.

The real focus of interest is Christine. She rented the land for her stand from Mrs. Van Dyke's agency, and when Mrs. Van Dyke, unwillingly to have anything so "low-brow" as a stand on her property, sets out to dispossess Christine, she finds she has a person to reckon with entirely different from the wealth worshipping group to which she is accustomed. Christine discovers unexpected allies in Diane and Theodore, niece and nephew of Mrs. Van Dyke.

Now you have read the story of the play. Be sure you come to see the exciting moments in which romance and comedy join hands to an end that is just right. Tickets may be obtained from high school students.

NOTES

PALOS PARK

Another week of peeping thru key holes and emptying wastebaskets and following you around until I know you quite well.

Seen at a Halloween party in Palos: Harold Morlock from Orland, wearing a dress and flirting with all the Palos boys. Hmm, I wonder if he got a date.

Seen by a flashlight: Wm. Kuipers daintily, plucking, not eye brows, but pulling hairs from a horse's tail, for a scavenger hunt at a Halloween party.

Also seen on the scavenger hunt. John Simmer and Howard McNeal pushing a wheel barrow down the southwest hi-way, accompanied by two girls. ??

Patricia Saunders is still disappointed because she could not find a broken sugar bowl for the hunt. Agnes LaBine should really be honored. She walked from Worth to Palos.

Whispers have been going round that Louise Kriz has been tagged, one "Louis the Second" but will some one please tell me who "Louis the First" is?

Will some one please tell a certain blonde the name of that boy out in Orland, who is continually drawing pictures of our "Christine"?

Pearl Zaleski's hobby is horse back riding and she is more enthusiastic about riding now, since she saw the cowboys riding the bucking bronco's at the rodeo.

To all bewildered people who are wondering what a doll is doing tied around Christine Hellig's neck and why she is getting signatures on a turnip, I merely wish to say, it is the outcome of the "Palos Juniors" initiation.

Palos Juniors will meet at the home of Christine Hellig, 122nd Pl., and 80th Ave., Thursday evening, Nov. 18 as part of her initiation. Shirley Haack, 124 th St., and 82nd Ave., will be voted on as a legal member.

If you hear an automobile pass you and you can't see it for dust, well, be on your guard because that is me trying to catch some one off guard. So be careful and I'll be sure.

Serving Omelets.—Omelets should be placed on cold platters to keep them from falling.

Scaling Fish.—Fish may be scaled easily by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

A Darning Ball.—A discarded electric light bulb makes a good darning ball.

Inexpensive Stew.—Chop two onions and a large carrot finely, and cut a pound of neck lamb into small pieces. Put into a saucepan with one cup macaroni broken into small lengths, cover with warm water and season. Let it simmer gently for one and a half hours.

Whipping of Cream.—If whipped cream will not stand up, it is often due to the fact that the cream is not sufficiently chilled. It is important, too, to have a heavy cream of the right butter fat (20 to 30 per cent) and 12 to 24 hours old. The cream must be cold, and is best beaten in a cold container.

Shoes Must Have Air.—Do not keep your shoes in the boxes in which they were delivered. Shoes require air to preserve them and they should never be kept in an air-tight box. Keep them in a shoe bag.

Save Table Surface.—If you will place a folded cloth under a dish which contains foods to be eaten you'll find the table surface will be saved many marks and the dish will be kept steady.

Removing Blueing Spots.—Blueing spots on white clothing can be removed by boiling in clear water.

REDDY FOX IS LAUGHED AT

REDDY FOX was miserable. Yes, sir, Reddy Fox was miserable. To be continually laughed at is enough to make any one miserable. No one ever likes to be laughed at unless they are trying to make people laugh at them. Reddy Fox wasn't doing anything of that kind. Oh my, no! No, indeed! Reddy considers himself a very fine gentleman and so, of course, he wouldn't think of doing anything to make people laugh at him. But they did laugh at him just the same, even the very smallest, and it was all because of the way he ran from Buster Bear with Jumper the Hare right at his heels. You see every body pretended to believe that it was from Jumper that he was running away.

So Reddy was very miserable. If he went down on the Green Meadows Danny Meadow Mouse would be sure to call out:

"Mr. Reddy has a scare at the shadow of a hare."

Then Danny would laugh in the most provoking manner, and hide where Reddy could not get at him.

If he went up to the Old Orchard he was sure to hear from Johnny Chuck:

"When Jumper gets him on the go Reddy's anything but slow."

Then Johnny would dive into the house and all Reddy could do would be to grit his teeth.

If he went down to the Smiling Pool he would no sooner come in sight of Jerry Muskrat than Jerry would shout:

"Reddy, Reddy, you watch out! Jumper's somewhere hereabout."

Then Jerry would laugh in the most provoking way and Reddy couldn't do a thing, because Jerry would be swimming with only his head out of water.

If he went to the Green Forest he would be sure to hear Unc' Billy Possum's funny chuckle from some tree overhead and then Unc' Billy would say:

"Ah done hear say it fo' a fac', Who runs away will sho' come back."

Then all Reddy could do would be to grind his teeth and tell Unc' Billy what dreadful things he would do to him if he ever caught him.

Now, of course, all that the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows did these things for was to tease Reddy Fox. When he grew angry they laughed, and the angrier he grew the harder they laughed. Of course that wasn't at all nice of them. But they didn't stop to think of that. Not one of them loves Reddy Fox, and now that they had a chance to get even with him for all the frights he had given them, and for all the mean things he had done to them, they were just bound to make the most of it. You see it didn't enter their heads that they might be making trouble for some one else. All they thought of was making Reddy Fox feel miserable.

But it is not very often that you or I or anybody else can make trouble for just one person. Did you ever think of that? It's so. You go ask Jumper the Hare. All Jumper's friends were laughing at Reddy Fox, and shouting mean things at him and calling him a coward, because they knew it made Reddy feel uncomfortable and miserable. It didn't once enter their heads that they were making trouble for any one else. Yet they were. They were making a lot of trouble for some one else, and that some one was Jumper the Hare.

FALL DAYS ARE THE SAUSAGE DAYS

Once Just Breakfast Dish, Now It Spreads Out.

By EDITH M. BARBER

SAUSAGE has risen in the world.

While its association with breakfast still remains, it is now allowed on the luncheon and supper menus. Of course, there was one exception to the old rule, as sausage has always been allowed to serve as a sort of a garnish for turkey or as a stuffing for other fowl.

The business woman housekeeper gives sausage, however, a star role, and when crisp fall days arrive she will occasionally choose it, as it demands only a short time for its cooking.

Sausage in cakes and sausage in links, whichever is preferred, may be used. There is no trick about cooking the first. Link sausage, however, needs special treatment to prevent the bursting of the casing. Of course, each link may be pricked with a fork, but I find it easier to allow sausage to cook in its own fat either in a covered pan on top of the stove or in an uncovered pan in the oven. In the first case, a low flame should be used for the first five minutes, after which the heat may be increased so that each link may be a golden brown.

Fried apples seem to belong with sausage when served as a main course. Some of the fat which liquefies as the sausage cooks may be used for cooking the apples in another frying pan. Instead you may like to make your main dish a combination of sausage and scrambled eggs, each of which seems to bring out the flavor of the other. And once in a while you will probably have to humor the family by giving them griddle cakes even at supper time with their sausage. Try these:

Sausage With Cream Gravy.

1 pound sausage
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk

Cook the sausages (if you use sausage meat, form into small cakes before cooking) in a heavy frying pan, tightly covered over a low heat for ten minutes. Then increase the heat until each link is brown. Remove sausages and all but four tablespoons of the fat. Add the flour and when well blended, add the milk slowly, cook one minute, add sausages and reheat. Season with salt and pepper if necessary.

Sausage and Apples.

6 sweet potatoes
3 apples
1 pound link sausage

Boil the potatoes until soft and place in a greased dripping pan; pare, core and slice the apples and place between the potatoes. Place

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

By JEAN
© By The Associated Newspapers

THE men think that they've been waiting too long—for their dates on street corners and the library steps. The trouble is that they're getting wise to us. As long as we could make them believe that it was woman's right to be late—as late as ever she pleased—we were safe. The boy friends waited like patient sheep. They used to think that we had all kinds of secret rites to perform to make ourselves beautiful.

But now they know that their girl friends can get to some office at 9 in the morning, and they're begining to think it's pretty funny that she can't get to the library steps by 6:30. It wouldn't be so bad if the girl friend would do her stint of waiting, too. But stand a girl up for fifteen minutes and she wanders off to buy a pair of stockings and then innocently tells you the next day that she waited for simply hours.

They're fed up. And so it's time we made a rule. Really, you know, a man shouldn't be asked to wait for more than half an hour. Well, anyhow, not more than fifty-five minutes.

UNSTEADY WATER LEVEL

A HOME owner is likely to be disturbed when he finds that the water in the gauge glass of his steam boiler is in violent action; that it does not remain at a steady level. The common cause for this is dirt and oil in the water. The effect is to cut down the efficiency of the boiler, to make heating less effective, and possibly to expose the boiler to damage.

With a newly installed heating system, oil used in making the pipe connections eventually works back to the boiler and makes trouble. And not only oil; dirt in the pipes is also carried down. A new boiler should be cleaned a week or so after it has gone into service. Some months later there should be another cleaning. After that, if the water used is reasonably clean, the boiler should run for many seasons before a repetition is needed.

Cleaning a boiler consists of using a cleaning compound that has the property of absorbing oil. The compound should not dissolve; it should be of such a nature that its particles, in circulating through the boiler, will have a grinding effect on scale and hardened sediment. The compound should remain in the boiler for a week or so when the fire is burning. The boiler should then be drained. The drain valve of a boiler is usually too small for the violent flow that would carry out the sediment. To assist matters, water under city pressure should be flushed through the boiler. A connection can be made at the safety valve opening; another at the lower connection of the gauge glass, which is to be unscrewed from the boiler wall; a third at the water supply connection.

Many compounds are offered as boiler cleaners, but only a few of them are really effective. Washing soda is sometimes used, but is of little practical benefit. The boiler manufacturer can be asked to make a recommendation. An old established and reliable steam fitter is likely to recommend a compound that he knows to be effective rather than one that offers him a good profit.

When the water level is seen to be unsteady, a pint or so of boiler water should be drawn off and heated in a saucepan. If it comes to a boil in the normal way, the boiler does not need cleaning. But if the water foams and sputters, cleaning is necessary, for there are substances in the water that check efficient operation.

A home owner can clean his boiler; but in general, it is best to have the job done by a professional.

ILLINOIS
BREVITIES

John S. Anderson, miner and Republican politician of Perry county, died at his home near DuQuoin.

Suits to force 30 Rockford merchants to pay $157,000 in sales taxes have been filed by the state department of finance.

Wilbur Martin, twenty-five years old, a farmer, died at Taylorville of gangrene, resulting from an injury to his left hand.

Dr. Edwin Lester Clark, a former Pawpaw physician, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Broadie, in Rockford.

E. Robert Hirschfeld of Galesburg was fined $100 for contempt of court by the state supreme court for practicing law without a license.

William Albert Potts, sixty-nine years old, a lawyer, of Pekin, died. He was a member of the Tazewell County Bar association for 46 years and a former master in chancery.

Attributing his discharge to political causes, the state civil service commission ordered the reinstatement of Raymond A. Griffith as a fireman at the Jacksonville state hospital.

Mrs. Ellen Melody Doyle, Lake Forest's oldest native resident, celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday with a visit to St. Patrick's church, a 2½-hour auto ride and a dinner with 25 relatives and friends.

Harry J. Collis, widely known golf professional and golf course architect, died suddenly in his home at the Indian Wood Country club, southeast of Chicago Heights. He was fifty-nine years old.

Miss Jessie Sumner, thirty-nine years old, member of a prominent banking family of Milford, defeated three opponents, including a veteran lawyer and a former state's attorney, for the Republican nomination for Iroquois county judge.

Former Governor Joseph W. Fifer observed his ninety-seventh birthday anniversary in Bloomington. His daughter, Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, invited members of the McLean county bar to meet the governor informally that afternoon.

Charles Duke, sixty-two years old, East St. Louis, convicted of assaulting his son-in-law, Rufus Woodring, thirty-six years old, of Caseyville, with a razor in June, 1936, was sentenced to one to fourteen years in the state penitentiary in Chester.

Mrs. Natalia Mary Turra, thirty-nine years old, shot and killed herself with a shotgun in her home in Belleville after writing several notes in which she revealed that she had attempted to kill herself previously by inhaling carbon monoxide fumes from the family automobile.

While his wife tried in vain to telephone police to come and stop him, Fred L. Strayer, fifty-three years old, Rock Island dairyman, ended his life by plunging a butcher knife into his heart. Relatives said he had been in poor health and had financial trouble.

Jean Campbell of Prophetstown was elected by the student body of Illinois college at Jacksonville as queen of the college home-coming. Her court consisted of Mary Pinkerton of Quincy, Helen Rehak of East St. Louis, Kathleen Duddy of Johnston City and Helen Kitter of Jacksonville.

Acceptance of the resignation of Dr. Frank J. Jirka, state health department director, was announced by Gov. Henry Horner. The governor appointed Dr. A. C. Baxter, assistant director since February 1, 1930, as acting director. Dr. Jirka will resume his private practice in Chicago and will be medical assistant of the state health department in charge of venereal disease control.

A state school for teaching eradication of termites, roaches, rats and mice in infested state buildings was planned by John J. Hallihan, director of the state department of registration and education. "The school will be a round-robin affair with representatives of the five state normal colleges and of the state welfare department present," said Hallihan. "Instruction will be given in the use of chemicals to exterminate the pests."

Dr. Wiley G. Brooks, superintendent of schools at Burlington, Iowa, and president of Burlington junior college, is the new president of Illinois Wesleyan university at Bloomington. He succeeds Dr. H. W. McPherson, who resigned last July. Present plans are for Dr. Brooks to assume his new duties on December 1. Dr. Brooks is fifty-three years old. He received his bachelor of arts degree from York college of Nebraska, obtained his master's degree at Columbia university in New York city, and his doctorate at the University of Iowa. He is president of the Iowa Teachers' association. He is married and is the father of two daughters.

Otto Gensler of Edwards husked 24.1 bushels to win the Peoria county corn-husking championship. Second was Pearl Easter, Chillicothe, with 23.8; third, William LaFollette, Monica, with 23.6, and fourth, Roy Harmon, Princeville, defending champion, with 21.3 bushels.

Leo J. Spitz, for four years a member of the Illinois racing commission, was elevated to the post of chairman by Governor Horner. He succeeds Peter B. Carey, whose place in the commission has been taken by William Schlake, Chicago manufacturer.

Lesson for November 14

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTER

LESSON TEXT—I Timothy 4:6-16; II Timothy 2:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Neglect not the gift that is in thee.—I Timothy 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers, INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why and How Ministers Are Trained. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Minister in the Modern World.

"The Christian Minister"—there is no greater calling among men, but none is more often the target for misrepresentation and abuse by those outside, and all too often the victim of the carelessness, weakness, and sin of those within its own circle. On the other hand it has had, and continues to have to this day, within its ranks such a noble army of faithful and sacrificial men as would probably be impossible to duplicate in any other calling.

The study of today's lesson should arouse in the hearts of Christian people a high regard for the ministry as a calling, and a kindly purpose to aid their minister to live up to its glorious possibilities. Every true minister who studies it will find his spirit humbled before God in thanksgiving for the privilege of service, and in prayer that he may be forgiven for his failures and empowered for the work of the future.

The need for such a study is indicated in the verses just preceding our lesson, namely, I Timothy 4:1-5, where we read of the express warning of the Spirit of God that in the latter times there should be teaching and preaching which departed from the faith, substituting men's wisdom for God's Word. One who looks around him cannot but feel that we have fallen upon that evil day.

I. What to Preach (I Tim. 4:6-9). The "good minister of Jesus Christ" preaches the words of God. To do this he must himself be "nourished" by them. Spare your preacher the necessity of running errands, serving on boards and committees, and encourage him to study his Bible.

Preacher, are you studying God's Book, learning and teaching "good doctrine"? If so you will have no interest in or time for "profane and old wives fables."

II. How to Preach (I Tim. 4:10-12).

1. Sacrificially (v. 10). The man who regards the ministry as a nice, easy, respectable occupation is not in the same calling as was the apostle Paul. In fact, there is nothing to indicate that he is in the Christian ministry at all, for in that calling there is labor and suffering of reproach. This is not something to be borne in a spirit of resigned submission. The minister knows and "trusts in the living God," and gladly bears every responsibility with which God may entrust him.

2. Authoritatively (v. 11). The minister of Christ speaks for God. In doing so he teaches with assurance and is to "command" men in the Lord's name. All too often the servants of the Lord feel and act like "grasshoppers" (see Numbers 13:33), and everybody else regards them as feeble and impotent, when they should be "strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus" (II Tim. 2:1).

3. Actively (v. 12). Whether young or old, the minister is to be an example, a pattern in his active daily life. Note how discriminating is the scripture. He is to be a pattern for others in speech, manner of living, in love, in spirit, in faith, and in purity of life.

III. Who Is to Preach (I Tim. 4:13-16).

1. The man who is divinely called (v. 14). God called Timothy; men recognized that call and ordained him to give his life to the exercise of his God-given gift. This is the right order for our day.

2. The man who is properly prepared (vv. 13, 15-16). The ministry calls for the best preparation that a man can possibly obtain. He must know how to read God's Word, both publicly and privately. He is to be skilled in exhortation, and in teaching Christian doctrine.

In conclusion, let us consider the portion from II Timothy 2 which properly presents the work of the minister as that of a soldier at war against the world, the flesh, and the devil. He must be prepared to bear hardness, and he must not yield to the temptation to get into "side-lines," no matter how dignified and profitable they may be. His sole business is to serve and to please God.

What Education Means

The real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupation that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, and death less terrible.—Sydney Smith.

A Happy Man

Happy the man who sees a God employed in all the good and ill that checker life.—Gowper.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted

by William Bruckart

National Press Building

Washington, D. C.

Washington.—The old mother hen, congress, has settled down, prepared to hatch something from the nest of crop control eggs. At this stage of the proceeding, no one can make a guess as to the brood that congress will produce any better than a farmer's wife can tell what will be hatched by a real hen in her chicken house.

What Will It Hatch?

About all that can be said for sure is that President Roosevelt called congress into special session to enact crop control legislation and, therefore, there is likely to be crop control legislation of some kind. It may not be hatched in the special session; the chances are that the many differences of opinion and the many demands cannot be reconciled in the six weeks which the special session may occupy before the regular session of congress convenes in January.

In addition to the lack of time in which to maturely examine crop control questions, a rivalry has developed between the house and the senate over the honor of drafting and putting through the law which will tell the farmers what they can and what they cannot do as farmers. Let me say just here that such a rivalry may work to the benefit of agriculture because it is bound to mean a compromise between the house and senate on the legislation that finally is enacted. In other words, extremists, for and against any proposal, will have to yield and this may possibly result in some workable program for crop control.

The main question before congress is the type of crop control law to be enacted. There are two kinds. Control may be compulsory or it may be voluntary. Most of the powers that be in the Department of Agriculture seem to favor the compulsory kind—a law that will tell the farmers they can or cannot do certain things and if they violate the decree, they can be punished. Many groups of farmers, however do not want that sort of thing. In consequence we find in congress now proponents of both the compulsory and the voluntary programs and each side appears to be determined in its position.

We have seen both types used. Potato growers will remember how the potato control law laid down the rule that a quota of production should be imposed upon every farmer and that he must pay 45 cents per bushel above the value of his potatoes for every bushel produced above his quota. These growers will remember also the agricultural adjustment administration requirement that all potatoes sold must be packaged in a certain way that was prescribed for the grower by the AAA. In this connection it will be recalled how there was a penalty in addition for those who failed to properly package the potatoes they sold.

Beyond these requirements, there was also a penalty prescribed to be invoked against any person who did not properly package his potatoes and place a government stamp thereon. Besides all this, there was an "informer" section in the potato control law. It provided something of a bounty for any person who relayed to the authorities any information he had respecting failure of any farmer to comply with the law and the regulations issued thereunder. It was reminiscent of prohibition days when informers were paid to squeal on bootleggers.

Having presented the picture as I see it, it seems almost unnecessary to add that there will be two enormous lobbies bearing down on congress in the special session as well as probably in the regular session that convenes in January. I think I foresee now how Secretary Wallace and those who believe with him are going to operate both within and without the administration. That is to say, there will be administration pressure and when anyone says that there is administration pressure, they are saying nothing more or less than that the administration is lobbying. It has always been that way and it is no exception that the Roosevelt administration does the same sort of thing.

The other lobby will embrace a considerable representation of farmer sentiment that is opposed to Washington dictation and which feels that additional taxes will have to be absorbed in part at least by agriculture. This happened in the case of a processing tax which was thrown out as unconstitutional. It will happen in every case for the reason that no one is going to absorb taxes when they can be passed on. When they are passed on to the farmers, that is the end because the farmer has no place to send them. The consumer is in the same fix.

Two Big Lobbies

The compulsory cotton control law was less stringent but it had penalties attached so that any cotton farmer who failed to comply with the regulations had to pay a tax on cotton produced over and above his allotment. This tax was so high—50 per cent of the value—that it amounted to a fine as punishment. The other kind of cotton control law, the voluntary plan, had no penalty provisions. This control was exercised by issue of subsidies or payments to farmers for raising various crops provided they limited the amount to the dictation of the AAA. Thus, under the voluntary control, the farmer could take the government's money and limit his crop to what the AAA said was his quota and thus be paid for compliance. Or, he could refuse the government's subsidy and raise what he pleased.

Now, in addition to these propositions, Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, is promoting what he calls his "ever normal granary" plan. This is to serve as supplemental to the crop control on the production side. The secretary has an idea that the federal government can take the surplus of good years off of the hands of farmers and hold them through the lean years when poor crops have failed to produce the amount required for American home consumption.

The secretary's "ever normal granary" plan is a red hot poker and there will be plenty of sparks flying off of the handle as well as the hot end when this thing is debated in congress. Opponents of the secretary's scheme contend that this program is straight out regimentation and that it goes as far in this effect as anything done by either the Fascist Mussolini or the Communist Stalin. It takes no stretch of the imagination, therefore, to see what is just ahead in the matter of a controversy for crop legislation for the reason that each of the programs that has been thus far advanced contains political dynamite.

Chairman Jones of the house agricultural committee began work on drafts of bills for crop control long before the session convened. Several weeks prior to the opening day of the special session, Mr. Jones appointed six sub-committees; each was charged with drafting legislation applicable to a specific commodity. In doing this, Mr. Jones threw the door wide open. He included six farm crops to share the alleged benefits of crop control legislation, including the "ever normal granary" surplus control program. The sub-committees were directed to work out legislation covering cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, rice and dairy products. Inclusion of rice and dairy products came as a surprise. Heretofore, there had been little talk about including rice and none about dairy products. The information that filters into Washington is that a majority of the dairy people have no particular hankering for government dictation in their business. Chairman Smith of the senate agricultural committee likewise has been busy. Throughout the summer he has been attempting to get a line on farmer sentiment by a number of hearings in various parts of the country. From all indications, Chairman Smith, who comes from South Carolina and is a farmer in his own right, is not enthusiastic about too much government dictation in the field of agriculture.

Over on the house side of the Capitol, Secretary Wallace has many followers. Obviously, he will co-operate with them very closely. Indeed, some of the house members who do not like Mr. Wallace or his "ever normal granary" scheme are referring to the Wallace supporters in the house as "Henry Wallace's boys." That indicates better than anything I can say how deep-seated the feelings are.

To add to the complexity of the job facing congress, President Roosevelt has said definitely that if there are subsidies paid to farmers in connection with crop control legislation, that legislation must carry additional taxes to take care of the bounty payments authorized. Simmered down, therefore, what Mr. Roosevelt has said is that if the farmers want that kind of crop control legislation, they and all consumers must pay for it with added taxes.

I have heard general commendation of the President's position. It surely represents a straightforward policy by the Chief Executive in this regard. He has told the country now that he is willing to support agricultural subsidies through control of the crops if the whole country which has to pay the bill is willing to bear the extra taxes that are required.

Having presented the picture as I see it, it seems almost unnecessary to add that there will be two enormous lobbies bearing down on congress in the special session as well as probably in the regular session that convenes in January. I think I foresee now how Secretary Wallace and those who believe with him are going to operate both within and without the administration. That is to say, there will be administration pressure and when anyone says that there is administration pressure, they are saying nothing more or less than that the administration is lobbying. It has always been that way and it is no exception that the Roosevelt administration does the same sort of thing.

The other lobby will embrace a considerable representation of farmer sentiment that is opposed to Washington dictation and which feels that additional taxes will have to be absorbed in part at least by agriculture. This happened in the case of a processing tax which was thrown out as unconstitutional. It will happen in every case for the reason that no one is going to absorb taxes when they can be passed on. When they are passed on to the farmers, that is the end because the farmer has no place to send them. The consumer is in the same fix.

In addition to this farm sentiment, the lobby in opposition to the Wallace program likely will find certain phases of other industry aligned with it. It will in all probability find a certain share or segment of consumer opposition because the consumers will have to pay in higher prices.

Fashion's Triple-Threat

HERE'S something new in the way of triple-threats, Milady: This trio of smart contestants in the thrilling game of Sew-Your-Own! With all three in your wardrobe you'll know stadium style, classroom coquetry, and sorority chic. Best of all, you won't spend a king's ransom nor a "long stretch" in their making, thanks to the economy and simplicity of these modern Sew-Your-Owns!

Sorority Chic.

Sorority chic begins and ends in the boudoirs on the third floor. This highly tasteful smock (above left) is a sorority requirement of the first order. You may choose either the short length to work in or the long length to be lazy in. Use percale, gingham or silk print.

Classroom Coquetry.

What if your knowledge of bugs or battles, or what have you, is limited? You can count on a certain coquettish smile and a certain smooth-lined frock (above center) to take you through any inquisition. Try your version in dull crepe or sheer wool.

Stadium Style.

Big moments come fast and furious when you're rooting for dear old Alma Mater, but you have to look the part to be one with that glamour and fun. Sew-Your-Own suggests its newest spectator dress just for this purpose—that you may look the part, feel the part and be on the winning side, no matter when or where the competition takes place.

The Patterns.
Pattern 1997 is designed in sizes 14 to 20; 32 to 44 bust. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 35-inch material. In full length 3½ yards (short sleeves).
Pattern 1353 is designed in sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material.
Pattern 1357 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 2½ yards of 54-inch material.

Pride in Perfection

A GREAT deal of the joy of life consists in doing perfectly, or at least to the best of one's ability, everything which he attempts to do.

There is a sense of satisfaction, a pride in surveying such a work—a work which is rounded, full, exact, complete in all its parts—which the superficial man, who leaves his work in a slovenly, slipshod, half-finished condition, can never know.

It is this conscientious completeness which turns work into art. The smallest thing, be it well done, becomes artistic.—William Matthews.
